The Global Approach to Leading During Crisis

Code: LM28 From: 1 - 5 June 2026 City: Los Angeles (USA) Fees: 5700 Pound

Introduction

In today's ever-changing world, nothing is certain except uncertainty. Management, CEOs, and board members must be flexible and adaptive to thrive. Adaptation means strategic understanding and planning in response to ongoing changes.

This course is specifically designed for leaders—those who have the big-picture perspective and the ability to lead and respond to change effectively. It's not for non-decision-makers but for those who are responsible for making decisions during critical times.

Recent global challenges, such as social unrest, pandemics, and health crises, have necessitated new strategies and approaches to running organizations and ensuring their survival. In times like these, it is crucial for executives, managers, and board members to master key skills such as strategic crisis management, media communication during crises, and technology adaptation to ensure continued success.

Course Objectives

By the end of this course, participants will be able to:

- Apply strategic thinking to assess their current environment and define organizational goals post-crisis.
- Evaluate and select strategies that provide a sustainable competitive advantage in a post-crisis world.
- Convert strategic plans into operational actions by turning threats into opportunities.
- Effectively use the Internet and remote management techniques during and after crises.
- Discuss experiences and lessons learned from various countries' approaches to crisis management.
- Acquire essential crisis leadership skills.
- Understand crisis response strategies and crisis communication techniques.
