Customer Management Strategies (Awareness, Acquisition & Retention)

Code: CC28 From: 9 - 13 February 2026 City: Munich (Germany) Fees: 4400 Pound

Introduction

In today's competitive marketplace, good customer service is often the differentiator between success and failure. While products may be similar, and can often be easily replicated, excellent customer service is a holistic, organization-wide effort that cannot be easily imitated. A customer-centric organization, where service excellence permeates the entire culture, is a formidable competitor. This course will guide you through the essential steps in customer management—from awareness, acquisition, to retention—and provide you with the skills necessary to build and sustain a customer-centric organization.

You will learn strategies to not only attract and retain customers but also to manage the customer lifecycle effectively. By focusing on customer service management strategies, you will ensure long-term customer satisfaction and loyalty, while turning service into a competitive advantage.

Course Objectives

- Develop a holistic customer care approach by integrating key aspects of customer service management strategy.
- Create objectives and programs aimed at maximizing internal customer satisfaction, which directly influences external service outcomes.
- Evaluate and implement customer satisfaction surveys to gain actionable insights.
- Use customer complaints to identify service improvement opportunities and foster a culture of continuous enhancement.
- Establish clear Service Level Agreements SLAs to ensure clarity and measurable standards for service delivery.
- Assess organizational performance in customer service using carefully selected Key Performance Indicators KPIs to track and optimize service delivery.

Course Outlines

Day 1: Defining and Appreciating the Customer

- Customer Definition: Understanding the various dimensions of a customer.
- Customer Service: The evolving role of customer service in modern business.
- The distinction between internal and external customers, and why internal customer service is as important as external.
- The importance of motivated and qualified employees in delivering excellent customer service.
- Overcoming the silo mentality and fostering cross-functional collaboration to improve service delivery.

Day 2: Customer Service as a Strategic Imperative
