Introduction

In today's world flooded with interest-based transactions, unlawful bank contracts, and investments, the need for Islamic banking is increasing. Many countries have recently seen a rise in demand for Islamic banking services. Analysts expect that the Islamic banking network will overtake the conventional banking system at the current rate of expansion in the next 8 to 10 years. Islamic Banking and Finance differ from conventional banking. How Islamic banking is consistent with the Sharia, a key element is a prohibition on collecting and paying interest. Ruling out most aspects of modern finance, it allows money to be used to trade tangible assets and business.
