Code: OC28 From: 17 - 21 November 2025 City: Amsterdam (Netherlands) Fees: 4900 Pound

Introduction

In the world of project management, stakeholder management is a critical factor for the success of any project. Understanding the definition of a stakeholder in project management is essential, as it helps you identify individuals or groups with an interest in your project or initiative. Without the proper support from stakeholders, whether in a project or a major change initiative, your chances of success are significantly diminished.

This dynamic and engaging Stakeholder Management training course combines both theoretical and practical aspects of influencing, negotiating, and communicating with stakeholders. You will learn how to build long-term relationships with stakeholders, ensuring project success. Additionally, you will acquire the necessary skills to develop a stakeholder engagement plan, manage expectations, and use communication and negotiation strategies effectively.

Course Objectives

This course is designed to equip participants with the essential stakeholder management skills necessary for managing relationships and securing stakeholder support. The course will enable you to:
