Foundations in HR Ethics

Code: HR32 From: 3 - 7 August 2026 City: Kigali (Rwanda) Fees: 4200 Pound

Introduction

Organizations today face increasing levels of complexity in managing their human capital. This is driven by rapidly evolving work environments, diverse workforces, and rising challenges linked to professional conduct and behavioral practices. In this context, HR ethics has become a critical pillar for building a culture grounded in fairness, credibility, and respect for employee rights—ultimately strengthening performance, supporting sound decision-making, and safeguarding organizational reputation.

The Foundations in HR Ethics program is designed for executive leaders, department heads, team supervisors, HR specialists, project managers, compliance officers, and professionals who aim to develop ethical policies within their organizations. It also meets the needs of individuals seeking structured knowledge in workplace ethics, balanced organizational practices, and effective decision-making related to human capital.

This course offers an applied, comprehensive learning experience that outlines the core principles of professional ethics, methods for handling behavioral challenges, approaches to developing fair policies, and strategies for aligning organizational responsibilities with employee rights. Participants gain the ability to analyze complex ethical situations, apply standards of transparency and integrity, and build a responsible and sustainable organizational culture.

Course Objectives

This program aims to equip participants with a wide range of essential knowledge and skills, including:
