Code: AC32 From: 27 July - 7 August 2026 City: Paris (France) Fees: 10600 Pound

Introduction

Social media has become a central element of modern communication, influencing how audiences discover brands, engage with content, build trust, and make decisions. Success on social platforms is no longer based on simple posting or digital presence alone. It depends on understanding audience behavior, analyzing platform characteristics, creating impactful content, measuring performance, and continuously improving results.

This 10-day training course provides a comprehensive and structured learning experience in social media management and digital content strategy. The course moves through key areas such as the digital communication landscape, audience behavior, platform strategy, personal and professional branding, content creation, visual storytelling, video marketing, content marketing, paid advertising, influencer collaboration, online reputation management, crisis response, and performance analytics.

The course is designed to strengthen participants' ability to plan, execute, analyze, and optimize social media activities professionally. It helps participants turn social media into a powerful tool for communication, marketing, relationship building, brand visibility, and achieving organizational objectives.
