Organizational Effectiveness: Strategic Development, Organization Design & Performance Management

Code: HR32 From: 14 - 18 December 2026 City: Geneva (Switzerland) Fees: 5200 Pound

Introduction

In today's rapidly evolving business environment, organizations must continuously adapt to changing market conditions, technological advancements, and workforce expectations. Sustainable success depends not only on well-defined strategies but also on an organizational structure capable of supporting business objectives, enabling high performance, and driving continuous improvement. Organizations that successfully align strategic development, organization design, and performance management are better positioned to improve productivity, strengthen employee engagement, and achieve long-term organizational excellence.

The Organizational Effectiveness: Strategic Development, Organization Design & Performance Management course provides a comprehensive understanding of the principles, frameworks, and methodologies used to improve organizational performance. Participants will explore how strategic planning, organizational development, organization design, workforce planning, governance, and performance management systems work together to create agile, efficient, and high-performing organizations.

Throughout the course, participants will examine the relationship between organizational strategy, operating models, organizational structures, role design, capability development, and performance measurement. The course also addresses business transformation, organizational change, leadership alignment, and the integration of performance management practices that support strategic objectives. By combining internationally recognized best practices with practical organizational frameworks, this course enables participants to understand how organizations improve effectiveness, optimize resources, and strengthen overall business performance across public and private sector organizations.
