Advanced Strategies in Human Resources

Code: AC32 From: 14 - 18 September 2026 City: London (UK) Fees: 6100 Pound

Introduction

Organizations today operate in highly dynamic environments shaped by technological advancement, changing workforce expectations, evolving business models, and increasing competitive pressures. As a result, Human Resources has evolved from an administrative function into a strategic business partner responsible for supporting organizational growth, workforce readiness, business transformation, and long-term sustainability.

Modern HR leaders are expected to align HR strategies with organizational objectives, develop future workforce capabilities, improve organizational effectiveness, support change initiatives, and help organizations respond to emerging trends such as artificial intelligence, digital transformation, and workforce automation. Strategic Human Resource Management has therefore become a critical capability for organizations seeking sustainable growth and competitive advantage.

This course provides participants with a practical framework for developing strategic HR plans, implementing workforce planning methodologies, enhancing organizational effectiveness, supporting business transformation, and strengthening employee engagement. The program also explores the growing impact of artificial intelligence on HR functions, talent management, workforce planning, organizational development, and future workforce readiness.

Through the integration of strategic planning, organizational development, workforce analytics, employee engagement, communication, and change management practices, participants will strengthen their ability to contribute directly to organizational performance and long-term business success.
