Introduction

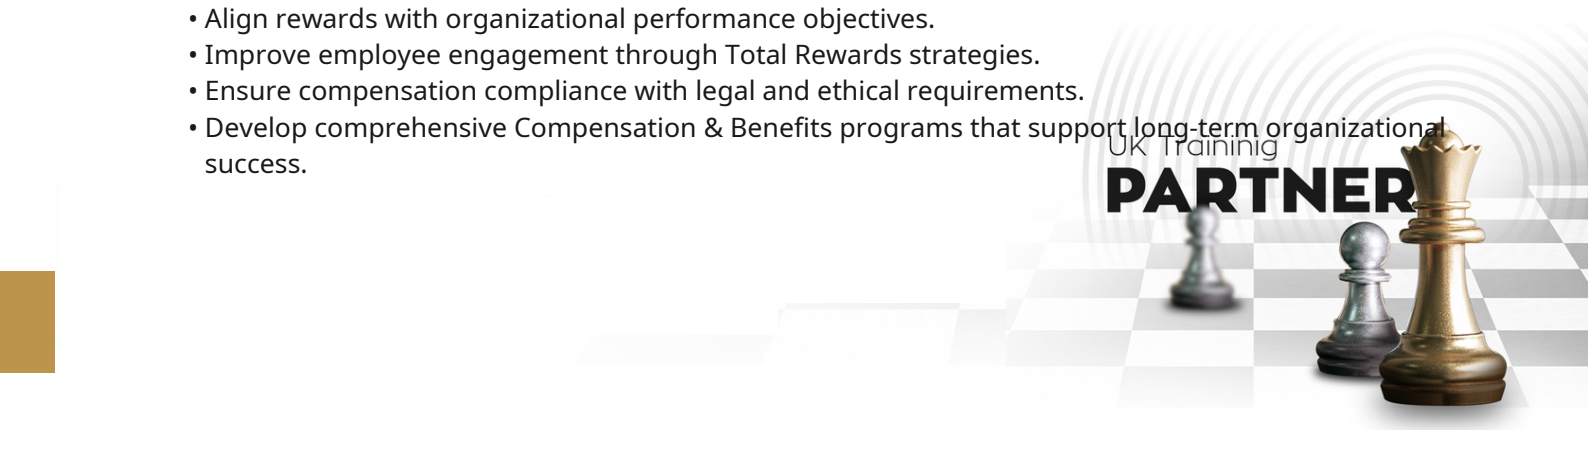

Compensation, Benefits & Total Rewards Management has become a strategic function that directly influences an organization's ability to attract, motivate, retain, and develop high-performing talent. In today's highly competitive labor market, organizations must design compensation and benefits programs that are equitable, market competitive, financially sustainable, and aligned with corporate strategy. Effective Total Rewards strategies extend beyond salary by integrating financial rewards, employee benefits, career development, recognition, work-life balance, and organizational culture to create a compelling Employee Value Proposition EVP.

The Compensation, Benefits & Total Rewards Management course provides participants with a comprehensive understanding of modern compensation management, salary structure design, benefits administration, job evaluation, salary benchmarking, performance-based rewards, compliance, and Total Rewards strategy development. Participants will learn how to build competitive compensation systems, administer employee benefits, maintain internal and external pay equity, evaluate reward effectiveness, and develop reward programs that support organizational objectives while enhancing employee engagement and organizational performance.
